

SCHOOL ONE

In the days of yore in old School One,
Lessons were learned and tasks were done.
Tho' the school house was half the size
The children were just as wise.
In olden days they carried books and slates,
Getting scolded if they were late.
Today, we carry a bookbag full of books,
We jam them in regardless of looks.
In olden days there was little time for play
You were in school and worked all day.
Today, we have recess and times for fun
And also, get our lessons done.

Lois Hartvigsen

OUR SCHOOL

To your school be loyal and true,
As to the red, white and blue.
For you are educated there,
And always must be fair.
To school we go every day,
To help guide us on our way.

Dorothy Santo Salvo