

Wedding Poem

Translation

To the newlyweds, we are not far away.

Our hearts say with joy we are close to Mentina and Felice.
Around this table together now with relatives, I see the bride with white veil and the bridegroom with happy thoughts.

Now newlyweds, you show happiness.
Your dreams are made a reality with the sacrament created by the Lord.
Man does not change this beauty.

With joy, I wish to you always prosperity and that you have happiness in the three sacred things--the love of your friends, parents, and relatives.

Between the toasts and the hymns of the singers, your festivity is crowned with stars and with happy joy and magic ardor.

Oh newlyweds, that your love should be always the same.

Yours-

Sciorilli Amando
