

Sid Bradley

The kids loved him. He had a playful nature that endeared him to all of us. No matter what the occasion, he was there having a good time.

He loved to talk about growing up on the farm in Brooklyn, Connecticut. His other interests encompassed gardening, fishing, and camping.

I remember him most for enriching my children's lives, for being a good friend, and for being a devoted husband to Fran.

He has a special place reserved in my heart.
