

A c. 1843 hand-colored map of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. This map depicts the area of Scotch Plains as part of Essex County. Also notice that Scotch Plains does not appear on the map—an indication that despite the local mills and businesses, Scotch Plains was not yet a major player in the state, still retaining its small-town flavor.