

The train station at Fanwood today. The building was donated to Fanwood by the Jersey Central Railroad in 1964, and is undergoing historic restoration. The restoration is nearly complete and the station is used frequently by many community groups today.

The pedestrian bridge of the Fanwood train station before the restoration. Notice the train station in the background. This pedestrian walkway has been rebuilt, and it links the eastbound and westbound railroad platforms.