

The original building and site of the Fanwood railroad station at Martine and Woodland Avenues. Before 1870, the railroad ran through Fanwood down what is now Midway Avenue.

A c. 1910 photograph of the modernized J.H. Martine home in Fanwood. Originally built in 1774, it was situated at 40-42 Martine Avenue, but is no longer standing. Legend has it that the home was used by General George Washington for his headquarters.
