

Three

THE GUARDIAN ANGELS

Without a strong system of protection, a community could easily disintegrate. From its earliest days, Fanwood has had a cadre of volunteers and professionals who have watched over its residents. The needs are endless: a house catches fire, someone is injured in an accident, or snow from a winter storm blankets streets and parking lots. Police and public works employees, along with volunteer firemen and first-aid squad members, are always on the job, making this borough a well-cared-for and safe place in which to live.