

HOWARD BRUNNER. As principal of the original high school and, later, as superintendent of schools, Howard Brunner devoted many years of his professional life to the education of children in the communities. The Westfield Road elementary school has been named in his honor.

ROBERT ADAMS. Principal of Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School from 1941 until 1966, Robert Adams supervised the move of the high school from the building on Park Avenue to its current location on Westfield Road. He was noted for his quiet persistence and had the unique qualification of being certified to teach English, Spanish, physics, science, and math.