Riding Club

Every Tuesday afternoon, fall or spring, a group of the school's "horse enthusiasts" accompanied by their adviser, Miss Julia Strang, could be found riding the winding, wooded trails of the Watchung Reservation. Many of the members started as beginners and gained proficiency and experience in horsemanship through taking part in the afternoon rides.

Early in June the club presented a horse show to give its members an opportunity to display their skill. They were grouped according to their ability and ribbons were awarded to the winners. The winners then competed for a championship. Last year's champion, Peter Lamscha, proved his horsemanship in several other competitions in which he won ribbons. To top off the day a picnic supper, held near by, provided fun for all.

Except for their individual riding fees, the members had no financial obligations to the club, and no officers were elected.
