Another successful year was had by the Student Council, which, with its capable advisors, managed to steer the student body through the long series of complications which arise in the governing of such an active and fast-moving school. Under the excellent leadership of its president, Bob Angle, the council met once a month and maintained the precedent of contributing towards making our school a better one. As is the custom, representatives were again sent to the Annual Conference of Student Councils at Princeton. The council is to be commended for its perseverance in the continuance of our school's democratic government.
