

SERVICE CLUB

Those stolid figures standing in the middle of the hall bucking between-period traffic are the service club members. These law and order enforcers make the halls a place to live in, instead of one in which to be pushed down, crushed, and trampled beneath hurrying feet.

The problem of the lunch time stampede was solved by this year's members. Two minutes before the bell ends fourth period, the members leave class for their posts. With a five minute detention penalty after the lunch bell for breaking rules, and the work of the service club, a commendable job was done in calming down the halls.
