PROJECTION SQUAD

Where there is a dying moan from the amplifier and a fading final flicker of film—then you know the projection boys are on the job. Although most of the films are in poor condition, the squad does an excellent job, considering its handicaps. The members also set up projectors and recording machines in classrooms and distribute phonographs. Cramped into the booth among much equipment, the boys cope with their worst headaches—breaks in films and worn out parts of the projector. Miss Lusk and the projection squad deserve our thanks for the job they have done.
