

Advisor . . MISS LORAIN AYERS

Although they meet just once a month, Library Council members are active every day. Each must spend at least two periods a week in the library in order to receive his one credit.

Checking books in and out, collecting fines, mending books and straightening shelves are only a few of the duties Miss Ayres, librarian, can find for her willing assistants. Since books play an important part in everyone's school life, they must be kept in good order.

The library council does a good job and keeps the library working smoothly.
