

TABLE OF CONTENTS

“In Youth we ought industriously to occupy our minds in the attainment of useful knowledge; in Manhood we should apply that knowledge to the discharge of our respective duties to God, our neighbor, and ourselves, so that in Age we may enjoy the happy reflections consequent on a well-spent life, and die in the hope of a glorious immortality.”

—Unknown