

STUDY HALL

Miss, Mrs., or Mr., Quiet or you'll get detention!

"Stop talking" . . . "Don't you have any work to do?" . . . "Open your books and study." These are the favorite words of Study Hall teachers. This is the period during the day that we can relax—or can we? That history test we have to study for and all that math homework makes this period seem far too short.

FRANCIS MALESKY, M.A.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS

Do you sometimes get bored with the daily classroom routine? Do you sometimes wish the course could be more interesting? Maybe you're one of the students who is overjoyed upon seeing a projectionist enter the room. If you are grateful for these breaks in routine, thank the Audio-Visual Aids Department. This fine department, under the skilled direction of Mr. Malesky, does much towards the better understanding of your curriculum through educational films.

"Somebody MUST be studying."

OFFICE STAFF

The secretaries in our various offices are well known to most of the students of the school. Familiar questions which they are constantly asked, "Did you find . . .?" or "I'm going for my permit, can I miss . . .?" A familiar sound, rasping over the loudspeaker as the school waits with bated breath is, "Attention please, sorry for the interruption". The office staff—backbone of efficiency is a well-run school.
