

LEFT TO RIGHT: Lois Kenyon, Tressa Perry.

HOME ECONOMICS

TRESSA PERRY

Planning and preparing meals is one of the most important jobs of any homemaker, and in the Home Economics Department the homemakers of tomorrow are developing these and other skills. In Hostess class the girls learn to serve foods in an interesting way to their families and to plan for a party. Further instruction is given on daily home life in the Family Living course.

If you like new clothes, you can learn to make your own, even on a slim budget, in Clothing class. Here you'll also learn just what style is correct for you and how to care for your clothes. The Home Economics Department offers a great deal to the homemaker of the future.

practicing economy

"Well, we'll only use half a can."

half a cup of sugar and a cup of baking powder

