

"I refuse to study!"

SOCIAL STUDIES

"This assignment should only take the rest of the night."

"Hey kid, what's the answer to number three?"

Mr. Charles Armerding

It is in this department we learn the meaning of such words as democracy and communism, socialism and capitalism. With our well informed faculty we attack world problems and situations. We are urged to make our own decisions and form our own opinions.

International Relations, a branch of the social studies department, is a new course. It deals with new nations of the world. This course is particularly aimed at students who are very interested and have an affinity for social studies.

The information offered to us in these courses is certainly important to our future and the future of our country.

Charles Armerding
Rutgers University
B.S., M.Ed.

Michael Greene
St. Peter's College
B.S.
New York University
B.A.

Anthony Grifa
Rutgers University
B.A.
Springfield College
M.A.

Herbert Jensen
Rutgers University
B.S., M.A.

John Koch
Bloomsburg College
B.S.

John McCook
Western Michigan
University, B.A.
Graduate Public Law
and Government
Columbia University

Sabbott Orrico
Florida Southern College, B.S.

James Sochan
Kutztown State
College, B.S.