

SERVICE CLUB

A student in the hall minutes before or after the passing bell, walking to an assigned part of the school building, is more than likely a member of the Service Club bound for his post. These diligent workers, chosen by the faculty because of their scholastic ability, leadership qualities and dependability, undertake a difficult job in a crowded school by directing hall traffic, guiding classes to and from assembly and providing safety and order. A familiar "go around, please" or "Don't run in the hall" helps our students to arrive at classes on time and in one piece.
