

English oral book reports strive to improve public speaking ability. As a last resort to defend her opinion, Carole Miller tries a smile.

English Department Modernized

Research in the library is an important part of English. Stress is placed on the development of personal opinion. Randy Schumacher.

Breaking with the pattern of tradition, Sophomore English classes are now studying English Literature—a course which has always been reserved for Senior students. However, in their Senior year, these Sophomores will begin a course in World Literature—a program never before offered in our school. World Literature is a cross sectional study, including French, Spanish, Italian, Russian, Oriental and Indian works. Within the next two years, a gradual transition will take place, so that all English classes will proceed in this sequence.

A modified independent study program is now being pursued in the Senior Honors English class. Here students work on a specified assignment utilizing classroom or library facilities, and individual discussions with Mr. Evans. At the end of the five-week period panel discussions are held, and the class as a whole discusses the literary works.
