Audio-Visual Department Provides Film and Record Library

Sudden darkness—all talking ceases. The film comes to life on the screen. For the first time girls as well as boys are taking an active part in the Audio-Visual Aids Department. Besides learning to run the film projectors, students are taught the operation of tape recorders, backstage machinery, overhead projectors, and language lab equipment.

Mr. Maleski is constantly at work expanding the facilities of the department. A new service, provided for college bound students, is an assortment of records and film strips describing various colleges. This library of films and records is shared with the other schools in our area.

Students always welcome films as an interruption to the daily class routine.

What would Mrs. Larson's class be like without the weekly Wednesday dictées?
