Art Department Explores Specialization

The hope of this year's Art Department was to encourage students to creatively express themselves while they attained a greater appreciation for the arts.

Students who wished a basic introduction selected Arts and Crafts, while those wishing to explore the subject in depth continued with weaving, ceramics, sculpture or life drawing. A new course offered this year, Philosophy's Art, evaluated the significance of past artists and their relevancy to the art world today.

The department would like to expand and add to the specialization courses offered for the next year's curriculum.
