

Dedicated to the Memory of Arlene Wynn

Mrs. Arlene Wynn . . . a superb teacher, a dedicated leader, a warm human being. . . .

as a teacher . . .

“She was concerned that her students put their minds to their studies” . . . “She wanted to get kids involved” . . . “You could tell she really enjoyed teaching” as a director . . .

“She was a very talented and dedicated director. No one will ever forget the plays she directed, no one will ever forget her. She was a great lady” as a woman . . .

“One of the sweetest persons I knew. I didn’t even know her, but she made it her business to know me” . . . “a woman who always had time for everyone” . . . “I never met anyone like her—so much love, so much warmth, so much unselfishness” . . . “a woman of great strength” . . . “She had more ambition for me than I did. When I was down she gave me confidence” . . . “She always gave you something to aim at” . . . “After knowing her, no one could walk away untouched. She could help in so many quiet ways” . . . “She was a very sincere person, always willing to help. I only wish I had accepted the help she offered”

“She was devoted to her family. Her face would light up when you asked her about her grandchildren, but she would never bore you” . . . “She made us all just a little better by her presence. Now that she’s gone we’re all a little less than what we were” . . . “As she gave to us, we should give to others”
