

Frank Maleski, Virginia Thomas.

C.I.T.

. . . beginning with a few materials . . . yearly intensifying the programs . . . increasing demands for audio-visual equipment, a vital part of teaching and learning . . . employing films, recordings and photography to supplement instruction . . . transforming words and thoughts into illustrations . . . bringing life to stillness . . . reaching its plateau in development, equipment sufficing the needs of S.P.F. . . . the fantasy of a technological world now a reality. . . .

The Nurses

. . . at the end of the hall a single office . . . a sanctuary . . . a couch to rest on . . . a band-aid to stick on . . . an aspect of school which all students come into contact . . . supplying medical services to the students; sight and hearing examinations . . . tine tests; instilling fear in the hearts of seniors . . . serving the students with more than just medicine; lending a sympathetic ear . . . coping with the growing pains at S.P.F. . . .

Alice Schott, Jacqueline Egan.

