

Modern Dance

. . . transforming a human body into a flower, a bird through the magic of interpretation . . . portraying abstracts; happiness, loneliness, expectation, with movement . . . singing a song without words, the body speaking its own language . . . leaping, stretching . . . "I think I broke something that time" . . . leotards in a rainbow of colors . . . balance, precision, grace . . . "I can't stay on one foot much longer!" . . . a group of girls merging creatively with movement . . . unveiling personal thoughts, while depicting universal feelings of the mind, heart and soul. . . .

An image of modern dance.

In motion. Barbara Risher.

With style and grace.