

Holiday Dance

. . . Saturday, December 23 . . . candles lining the school driveway . . . couples walking past gas-lights and horse-drawn carriages . . . feeling the presence of the joyous season . . . entering into a gaily decorated room . . . the cafeteria transformed into a Christmas setting of long ago . . . winter's cold outdoors contrasting with the warmth within . . . meeting friends . . . Holiday Dance '72 . . . music provided by the "Moonglowers" . . . an unforgettable evening . . . "Those were the Days" . . .

"Not so tight! I can't breath!" Judy Willis.

"Who spiked the Coke?"

"If you move your hand an inch higher, I'll break it!" Tammy O'Gorman, John Brotsky.