

First Row: Frances DeSalvo, George Esposito. Second Row: Timothy McGuckin, Charles Dettmar.

Business Department

The Business Department is a major link between S.P.F.H.S. and the community. Marketable skills taught in school proved a necessity in the expanding work experience program supported by local businesses. FBLA and DECA students profited in their roles as public relations and service organizations. Under DECA's new management, the school store provided a laboratory experience for students in salesmanship, bookkeeping and merchandising. Beginning in January, local representatives appeared weekly to discuss job opportunities available to the Class of '74. In addition, the Business Department, with the hope of educating students for a smooth transition into full time employment, began a study on the community's demand for employees in various business positions and the requirements for graduates applying for these positions. Through the utilization of many mediums, the Business Department prepares students for future entry into the business world.

Planning courses for the next typing class. George Esposito, Frances DeSalvo.