

Music Department

The Music Department provides many channels for students to express themselves and their talents. Electives include the marching band, orchestra, and the various choirs. Through new courses such as Guitar for Beginners, Basic Music Theory, and mini-courses in Music Literature and Music History, the department seeks to promote outlets for musical expression and experience not only to students who had previously shown interest in their areas but to any student who has an interest in experimenting in new areas.

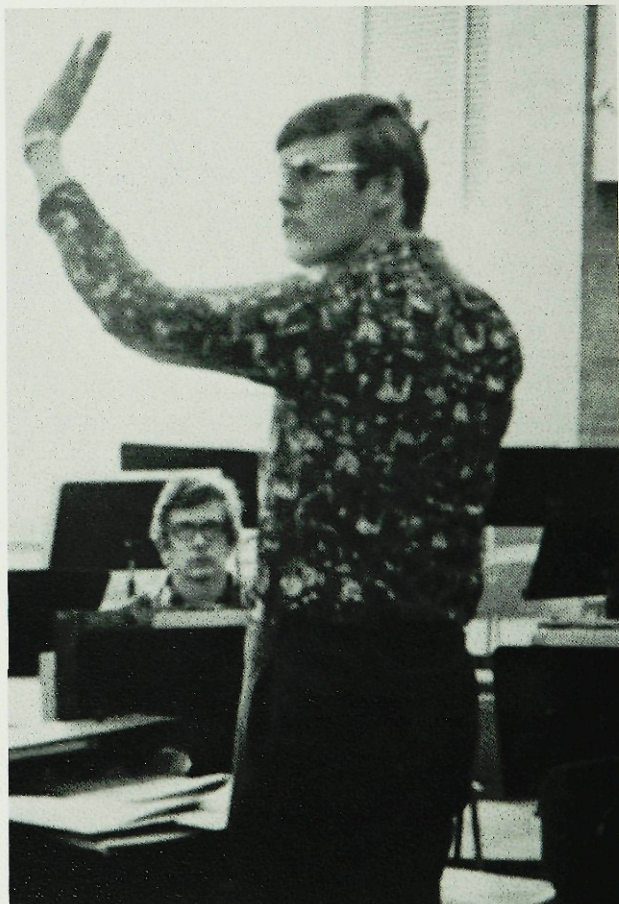

In addition to the new courses added this year, the Music Department offerings include instrumental and vocal music. These courses further the department's goals of giving all students a chance to experience a sense of personal satisfaction through the world of music.
