Ever wonder where all our showcase masterpieces come from? The Museum of Modern Art? The Metropolitan Museum of Art? No, they're from SPFH's Art Department which allows students to partake in such popular courses as ceramics, basic crafts, and photography. If, however, you're searching for a course that is somewhat different, the Art Department also offers filmmaking, textiles, and philosophies of art.

The Department participates in Bandtasia, which is held every spring. It is at this time that students from all art classes are given the opportunity to display their work and to view the work of their classmates.

The Art Department functions to serve a three-fold purpose. Its main concern is to enrich our insight and awareness of our environment and ourselves. In addition to this they try to make each student realize his potential as a creative human being. Last, the Art Department works to prepare the student for a lifetime career in art-related fields.
