

SPECIAL, INDUSTRIAL AND CAREER EDUCATION

RICHARD BLANCHARD

VITO CUPOLI

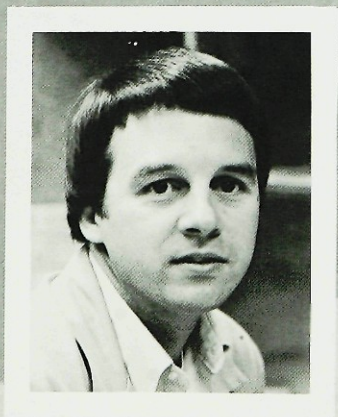

If you happen to be in the front of the school at about noontime, you may see students boarding busses and leaving the parking lot for unknown destinations. Actually, these students are supplementing their academic education through the Special, Industrial and Career department's program at the Union County Vocational Center. There the students spend a half-day studying subjects such as appliance and auto repair.

Students in Industrial classes learn to work with their hands as they gain experience with a variety of tools and machinery. The final results are beautiful metal and wood products.

Students who take courses in the Special, Industrial and Career departments are encouraged to work at their own paces and levels, as they work and grow as individuals.
