"I think there should be a variety of languages. Maybe Arabic."

"Foreign Language broadens your horizons."

Who could ever forget making puppets for Mme. Zed's class, or trying to conjugate those impossible Latin verbs? Any language student will surely remember the fiestas in Spanish, the Italian culture days, the German Christmas party, or the French food festival. The trips to New York City, and certainly the trip to Spain will be memories that stay with us a long time. Along with teaching us a foreign language, the courses helped make France, Spain, Germany, or Italy to become something tangible, with personality, instead of just being odd-shaped regions on a map. Above all else, taking a foreign language served to change our perspectives and open our minds.
