

Custodians wake up the building slowly — opening doors and lighting hallways.

Students begin to drift in for extra studying or perhaps for signs of friendship.