

INQUIRING MINDS WHERE

Did Commencement take place a week early? Was Senior Cut Day repeated, as a result of the overwhelming turnout for the first one? Was the Class of '87 kidnapped? Is this just another trick to avoid final examinations?

Spiffy-Hi Today turned to the SPFHS underclassmen who, only a few, short days ago, stood shoulder-to-elbow with the missing Seniors. Perhaps they had the "inside story?" Their thoughts on the disappearance were both intriguing and often conflicting.

A typical underclassman, when asked about the mystery, quickly blurted out, "I don't know," or "I didn't do it!" Some ran at sighting our reporters. One student, whom we will call "Joe Frosh," slipped a folded note, on 8½x11 white-lined composition paper, to one of our reporters. It read: "Please don't tell who I am, or they'll rub me out with Ben Gay! They've probably suffered enough. The Seniors, I mean! Last week, a few of the guys decided we'd had enough of their attitude, so we stampered them into that school elevator they told us about, using day-old squid for bait. Once we had them inside, we turned up the Dentist Music full blast! I guess they're still there. You can leave the reward in my locker."

Detectives will follow up on the note by first locating the elusive school elevator, hopefully before the Dentist Music finishes off the Class of '87.

A Junior, who also wished to be anonymous, suggested another possible location for the Seniors: Guam. The Seniors were anxious to give up their rule of Spiffy-Hi to "a more deserving group of students," the Class of 1988. Therefore, Guam: "the farther away, the better," she maintained. She was taken away for psychiatric observation.

No Sophomore spokesperson came forward. Rumors suggested the Faculty was pressing their silence.
