

EDUCATION

H. DRUCKER

M. HORTON

B. KATZ

E. LEHR

J. LONG

J. RAMOS

SPECIAL ABOUT PLENTY!

The student-teacher relationship here is unique. The teacher will often carry on a conversation with the student which may open ideas or feelings which will hopefully make the student feel better about him/herself as a person. They attempt to encourage the students to perform and feel better about school. That challenge itself is very special. For students with emotional or learning disabilities, the Special Ed teacher may be the only hope for educational and social development beyond the family, if participation in a regular class is an impossibility.

Katrina Duque