

WORDS TO LIVE BY

GREG LOUGANIS

May 11, 1993

To The Graduating Students of Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School:

I have been asked to write a few words to you about challenge and accomplishment.

When I think of the challenges and accomplishments within my own life, I believe that determination has been one of my greatest allies. Through determination anything is possible. It was a combination of determination and discipline that helped me succeed both in my diving career as well as overcoming my reading disability.

There will always be challenges in life. When you set a goal and are determined to reach it, chances are you will be successful. Overcoming great obstacles and being the best you can be at whatever you choose is a wonderful feeling. Determination and believing in yourself will help you accomplish your goals.

Sincerely,

Gregory Louganis

Thank you for asking me to submit my own "Words to Live By" for the Class of 1994. I hope the following thoughts will suffice. Good luck to you and to the rest of the yearbook staff.

Be confident. There is much the world can learn from you.

Be responsible. There is much that you can do for the world.

Be hopeful. The potential the world has to offer you is equal to the potential within you.

Best wishes,

Donald T. DiFrancesco
