

Spirit Day

Hey, it's not everyday New York has a Subway Series! In honor of the occasion the Culmen sponsored a Spiffy Subway Series Spirit Day on October 24, 2000. All the proud fans came to school sporting their favorite Mets and Yankees gear. After that day, there was no denying your loyalty, no matter what the outcome of the series. The teams were definitely a great match up and are on the books as having the longest World Series game in history. By the end of game five, the 2000 World Series Champions were crowned and the Mets fans walked sullenly through the halls.

Willie Simpson, Josh Finkelstein, and Mike Jensen never miss a chance to exhibit their support for the Mets.

Dave Larkin, Kenny Kosces, and Sheila Marikar bond over their shared love for their team.
