

NEW TECHNOLOGY

You can't escape it: TECHNOLOGY. It's everywhere you look from cell phones to cameras, to cameras that are cell phones, and straight to the classroom. Nutritional science rooms are full of class sets of laptops and yearbook is digital for the first time. The age of technology is upon us and leading us into the future.

TECHNOLOGICAL CONNECTIONS

Top: It's 2:25 and thanks to her cell phone, Junior Erin Gallagher is already in touch with her friends.
