

kenya dig it?

Embracing her newfound friends, freshman Gillian Clark smiles for the camera. Clark was selected, along with six other individuals in the country, to visit Kenya. There, they were able to interact with the people for whom they raised money during a thirty-hour famine. "Meeting the Kenyans showed me how lucky we are. We take so much for granted and never really realize how much we do have, since we focus on what we don't have," stated Clark.

free fallin'

"I went [to the Dominican Republic] with about eighty people and only knew six. Once I got to know everyone, it was easier for all of us to meet new people together. I was able to experience so much with them." junior Jessica Reddington

under the sea

"Near the end of my vacation in Mexico, we got word that a category five hurricane was coming and we were stuck on the island. Everyone at the hotel had to go into an underground room while the storm hit. The damage was unbelievable. There was ocean water in our hotel room and trees were ripped out of the ground. The airport was flooded, so we were stuck there for a few extra days. It was quite the bonding experience."

junior Jenn Gardella

"The people I met from Aruba helped me enjoy being in another culture. They definitely helped me have a blast, I'll never forget them." junior Rob Scibek

"While I was in Australia I went to school for a few days to meet Australians. It was really interesting to see the differences in our school systems." junior Sam Carow