

all hail caesar

Seniors Danielle Porter and Dave Ginsberg gracefully accept their titles of Homecoming Queen and King. The audience was thrilled with the end result because both of these students were outgoing, involved, and had great personalities. "Well, I thought it was one of the most fulfilling things I have ever done. Aside from winning, being up there with my fellow classmates made me really feel proud to be a part of our school," said Ginsberg.

"We got the idea for the Roman theme from searching on the internet. We spent all night shopping, painting flags, and making columns the day before the event." junior SGA member Kirstan Fuller

see you later gladiator

Senior Colin Weber ducks from a threatening swing delivered by junior Dan Birnbaum in the gladiator challenge. Weber had a strenuous battle to victory as the audience looked on, clapping and booing with every swing. "My strategies were to not swing too hard, so if I missed I wouldn't fall off, and to just keep hitting him in the head to get him dizzy," bragged Weber.

ch-ROME-atic

Nostalgia of kindergarten creeps up on senior Jared Chmelnik as he colors a Roman warrior. As an SGA officer, Chmelnik spent countless late nights at the high school prior to the event and was in the gym all day preparing for the event. "It was a little hectic though, trying to get all the performances out on time and putting them in an order that would work out the best and please everyone," added Chmelnik.

en-guard

"Homecoming was so much fun. We all went out together and bought our material and accessories. I actually think getting ready was as much fun as being there." senior Danielle Porter

"Preparing for Homecoming was stressful because I was running late. My hair wasn't the way I wanted it, and it seems that all the cashiers at the stores I was going to that day were incredibly slow." senior Claudia Ahiabor

"I felt on top of the world sitting in front of everyone in my toga. Throughout the event, I became more nervous as we approached the moment of truth. When Dave won, I was destroyed. I just sank in my seat trying to hide away from the world." senior Nehemiah Burney-Porter
